Most kind is; but no one by himself

Can grasp God.

But where danger threatens

That which saves from it also grows.

In gloomy places dwell

The eagles, and fearless over

The chasm walk the sons of the Alps

On bridges lightly built.

Therefore, since round about are heaped, around clearness,

The summits of Time,

And the most loved live near, growing faint

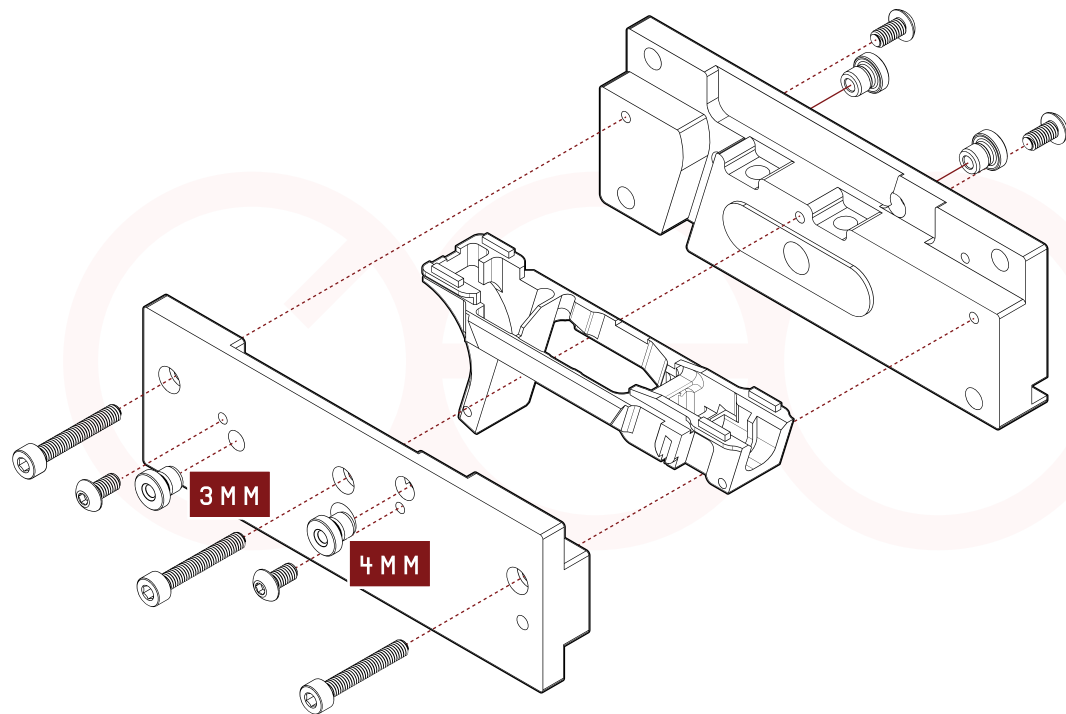

On mountains most separate,

Give us innocent water,

O pinions give us, with minds most faithful

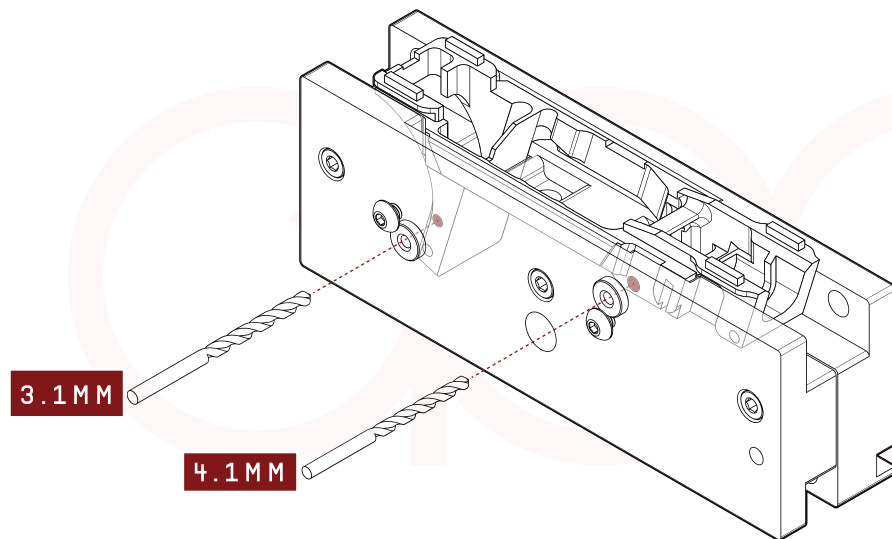

To cross over and to return.
